Fire Engineering in the 21st Century and Beyond

Setting the modern scene.

- Housing.
- Financial incentives.
- Targets.
- Pressure on local governments.
- External pressure on federal governments.
- Planned devolution.
- Pressure to deliver.
- Pressure to reduce carbon footprint.
- Pressure to make cost and efficiency savings.
- Unstable planet – unstable world.
- Self-regulation.

Setting the modern scene.

- Less with less.
- Green incentivisation.
- Energy market instability.
- Changing construction funding models.
- High volume production.

Setting the modern scene.

- Wide-ranging changes in legislation made quickly.
- Changes in legislation still outstanding.
- New legislation in place that has yet to be tested.
- Outstanding prosecutions.
- Lack of experiential understanding within the judiciary.
- Increased scrutiny on previously unregulated areas of the industry.

Setting the modern scene.

- Public coverage of incidents.
- Increased social awareness.
- Reliance on public material.
- Increased interdependency of products, materials, services.
- Changes in methods of information sourcing

Social and media drivers

Setting the modern scene.

- The development of green technology.
- The use of green materials inside buildings.
- The development of BESS.
- The move to Hydrogen.
- Experimentation with Ammonia.
- Solar panel systems in all types of buildings.
- The development of alternative methods of insulation for existing buildings and new buildings.
- The proliferation of electric cars.
- Carbon capture.

The global picture.

- Increased focuses on energy efficiency in buildings.
- Extreme weather conditions.
- National and international targets and penalties.
- Fragmented international policy.
- Green building.

Complex building life management.

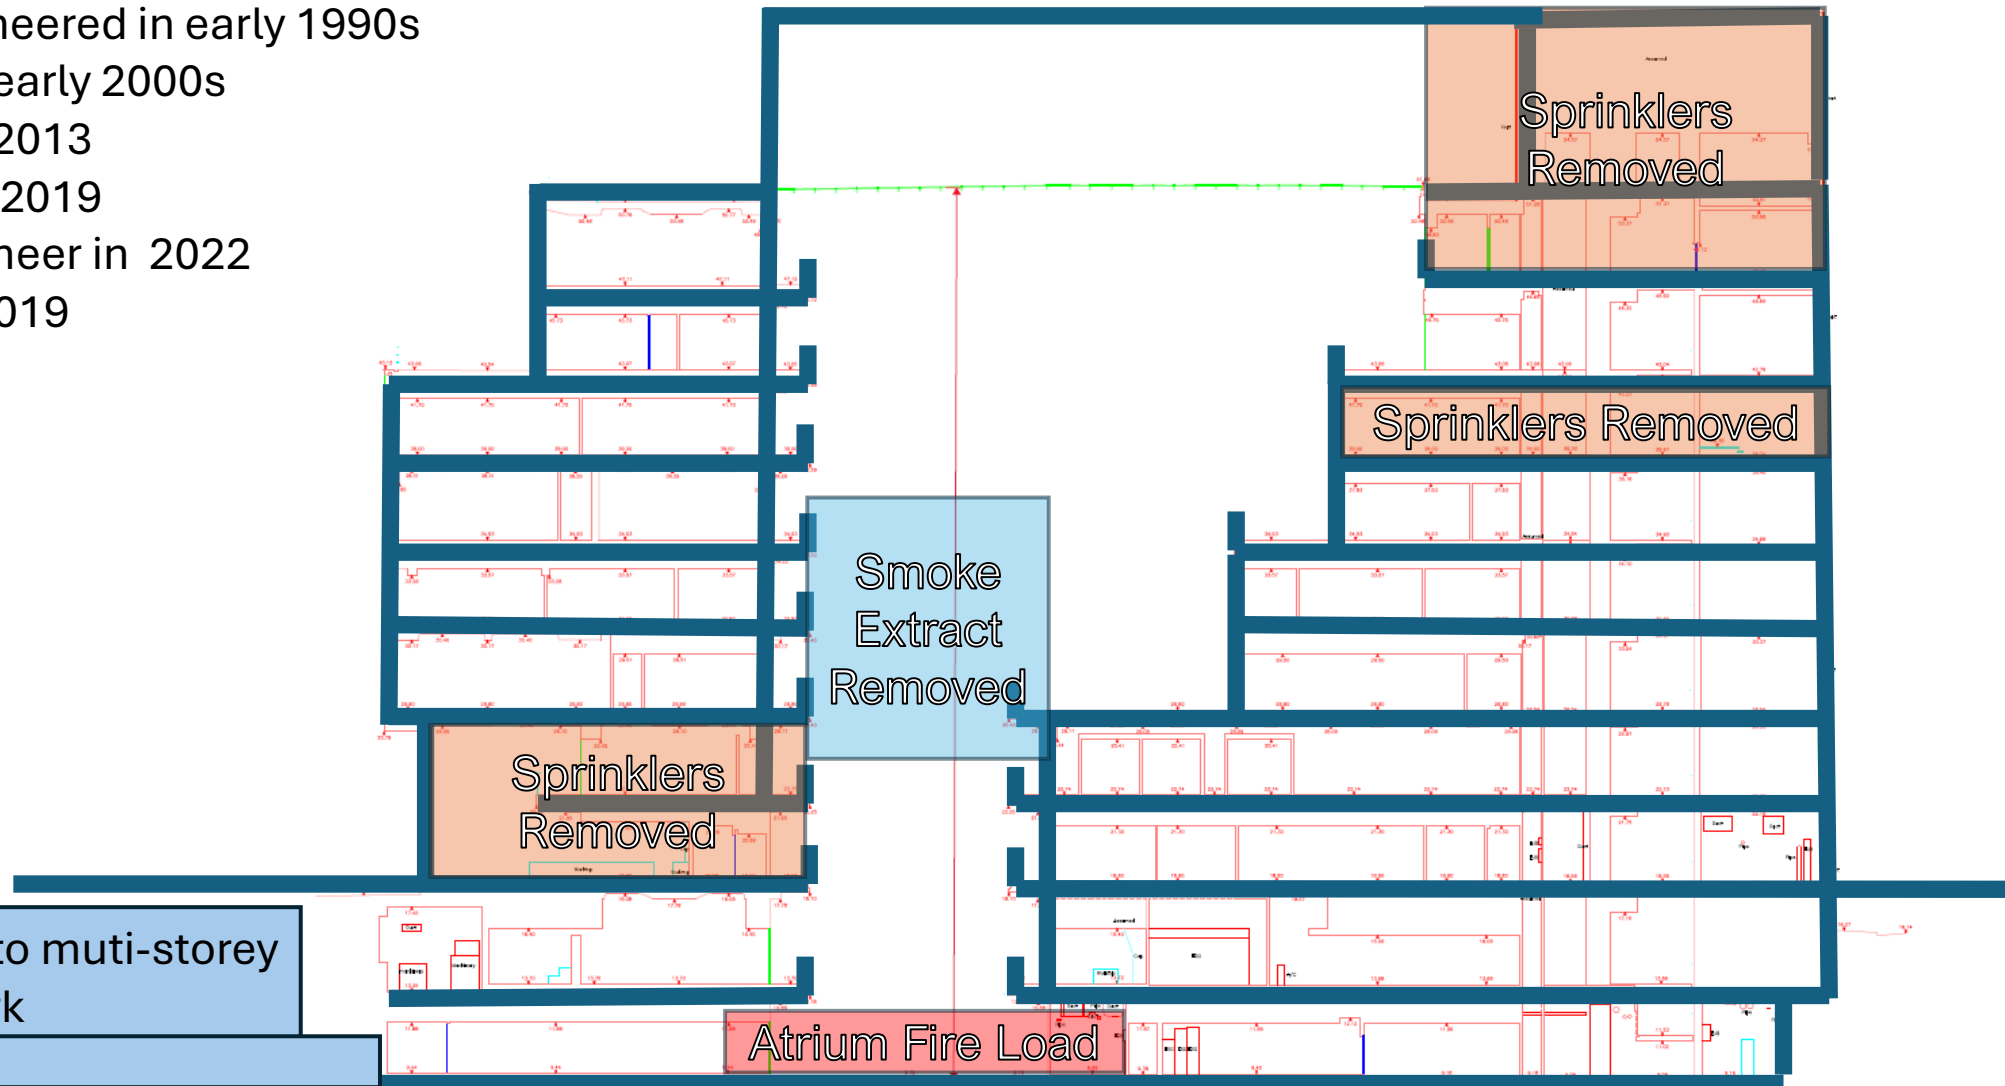

Building diversification.

Compound Fire Engineering

- Originally fire engineered in early 1990s
- Fire engineered in early 2000s
- Fire engineered in 2013
- Fire engineered in 2019
- Attempt to re-engineer in 2022
- No evidence pre-2019
